ANNUAL SCHOLARS/DONORS LUNCHEON

February 14, 2008

WELCOME FROM DEAN RICHARD A. MATASAR

Dear Friends,

It is a pleasure to welcome everyone to our celebration of the donors whose generosity has made New York Law School's named scholarship program possible and the scholars who will benefit from this program and who will become the next great generation of graduates of our School.

First, on behalf of the Board of Trustees, faculty, staff, and students, I want to thank our donors. Your commitment to giving opportunity to those who follow behind you has made it possible for these scholars to have the opportunity to achieve all that they are capable of achieving. You believe in the students who have the honor to call themselves your scholars, you support their dreams, and you are helping propel them toward their futures. And, of course, it is not only the 2008 scholars whose lives you touch. Your scholarships and those whose names you honor endure in perpetuity, encouraging generation after generation of students to follow in your footsteps. We are proud and grateful that you are part of the New York Law School community.

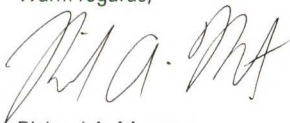

Equally importantly, congratulations to our scholars, all 100 of you. The special named scholarships which you have been awarded are yours because of your hard work and success. The donors and the entire Law School community are proud of you.

New York Law School's named scholarship program has grown again this year. We now have 76 endowed scholarships, 7 of which are new, and we have an additional 6 in formation under our multi-year scholarship establishment plan. Combined, the approximate value of the named scholarships in our endowment totals an impressive $12 million.

There is a continuing need for even more financial support than the named scholarship program can provide. Therefore, the Law School annually augments the named scholarship program; this year, New York Law School awarded over $5 million in scholarships and grants to a total of 512 students, at an average size of $9,984.

If the greatness of a law school is measured by the contributions of its members to society, one glance at this book makes it clear that New York Law School is a great law school. Our donors have made, and are making, tremendous contributions to our society, and our Law School. To our scholars, who are beginning their journey to do the same, we look forward to following your careers and the hope that in time you can follow the example of your donors as leaders and role models. It will be wonderful to welcome you back to this luncheon again . . . not as scholars, but as donors.

Warm regards,
