RICHARD A. MATASAR

Dean and President

For members of the New York Law School Community, getting to know one another is an ongoing process. This annual publication is provided to familiarize you with new faces around the school as well as with those faculty and staff members whose paths you may not regularly cross. I hope that you'll find it helpful as we work together during the 2006–2007 academic year.

Building Access

Students can enter the Law School 24 hours/7 days a week (including holidays), but not all areas can be accessed at all times. During the times the buildings are officially closed, access is restricted to the Stiefel Reading Room and the Broad Student Center (first floor and lower level). Student members of the Law Review and Moot Court may also access their office spaces. During the 24 hour library study hall the Mendik Library will close each evening at 2:00 a.m. and other designated areas will remain open. Students must present their New York Law School photo-identification card when entering the buildings at all times.

The entrances at 234 Church St. and 40 Worth St. are wheelchair accessible.
