Join us for a screening of Radioactive: The Women of Three Mile Island, an award-winning documentary about the 1979 Three Mile Island nuclear meltdown. The film covers never-before-told stories, including that of NYLS Adjunct Professor Joanne Doroshow, who took the local community's case to the U.S. Supreme Court as a young attorney.

A panel discussion will follow the screening with director Heidi Hutner, Professor Joanne Doroshow, and other members of the cast and crew, moderated by the Forum on Life, Culture & Society at Touro University.

Co-sponsored by the Center for Justice & Democracy and Forum on Life, Culture & Society at Touro University
