Olivier André

Kiera Gans

Mauricio Gomm Santos

Olivier André, Senior Vice President of the International Institute for Conflict Prevention and Resolution, Kiera Gans, of counsel at DLA Piper, and Mauricio Gomm Santos, a partner at GST LLP, will discuss the challenges of commercial conflict resolution in Brazil and Mexico. In a time of substantial social, political, and commercial flux, principled commercial dispute resolution in these markets has taken on new urgency.

This event is co-presented by CPR and part of the James F. Henry Speaker Series.

James F. Henry was the founder and longtime President of CPR Institute (International Institute for Conflict Prevention and Resolution), a nonprofit program of several hundred corporations, law firms, government attorneys, and academics, whose mission is to develop alternatives to corporate, government, and international litigation. CPR was responsible for the “Corporate Pledge,” which in the mid-1980s committed more than 4,000 companies to consider alternatives to litigation in disputes with other pledge signers. James F. Henry remains one of the most effective and influential leaders in bringing Alternative Dispute Resolution into the mainstream of American legal practice.
