
Motions

People v. Maynard, 80 Misc. 2d 279 - NY:
Supreme Court, New York 1974

11-14-1973

Interview of Colan Nash by Ralph Addonizio

Lewis Steel '63

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio

Date: 11/14/73

To: Lewis M. Steel

Re: People v. Maynard

My name is Ralph Addonizio. This is a memo to you regarding the assignment you gave me Monday, November 12, 1973 to contact and interview Mrs. Colan Nash, Michael Feebles' mother.

I contacted Mrs. Feebles yesterday, November 13, 1973 at approximately 6:00 PM at her house in Union City, New Jersey. Her address is 4410 New York Avenue, apartment 34.

I met Mrs. Nash in the company of her husband, who was also present at this interview. I identified myself and told her that I was a social worker from the East Village trying to get her son, Michael Feebles, a disability pension through Social Security, or any type of pension we could get him. And that I wanted a medical background of his instability. She told me that she had been called by a Lt. of the New York City Police Department that she had been in contact with for several years, and he cautioned her not to talk to anyone about her son, or about the case that her son was a witness in. At this time I assured her that if the Lt. told her not to talk about it, it was confidential and I didn't want to know about it. All I was interested in was getting a medical background for his supposed pension. With this she started giving me all sorts of information on Michael Feebles. She told me that when he had first started school - she didn't remember the exact year - but he was about 7 or 8 years old, that he was playing in a playground on Riverside Drive, and he slid down a slide head first and cut his head. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital by her mother, who was watching the boy at the time, and from that time on he was very unstable and could not learn. He is illiterate, and does not know how to read or write. St. Luke's Hospital has a large medical record on the man from over a period of years.

In 1953, he was committed to Bellevue Hospital for 7 weeks, where he received electric shock treatment. In 1955, he was committed to Rockland State Hospital, and he was kept there over a year. The discharge date was July 9, 1956. The diagnosis at that time was that he was incurable, there was nothing they could do to

More....

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio
Date: 11/14/73
To: Lewis M. Steel
Re: People v. Maynard

help him. He would get no worse, but he would get no better. After he came out of Rockland State Hospital, he had some aftercare treatment at a clinic on 13th Street, off Fifth Avenue, in Manhattan. She said that this did not work out, and she sent him to the Dominican Republic for a couple of years to live with her sister.

She also gave me some W-2 forms - or showed me some W-2 forms - of jobs that he had had. He had worked in 1960 for Bickford's Restaurant Company (at 45-31 Court Square, the personnel offices) ^(records) Another job that he had was Bonded Contractors, Incorporated, at 210 West 70th Street.

The W-2 form with regard to Bickford's was dated 1960, and indicated that he received $134.40 which would indicate that he was employed there a very short time. The W-2 form from Bonded Contractors, Inc. of 210 West 70th Street, indicated that he was paid only $97.62.

At the time of Feebles' initial injury, Feebles was 7 or 8 years old. At that time his address was 180 West 94th Street.

With regard to Feebles' stay at Rockland State, Mrs. Nash was aware that a Dr. August had something to do with her son's case. While at Bellevue, Feebles received electric shock treatments, but Mrs. Nash could not supply any further information about that hospitalization.

Mrs. Nash states that Feebles attended public school, first at 104th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, and when she had problems with him there he was transferred to a school at 109th Street. She says that when the school system continued to have problems with him, he was then sent to Bellevue Hospital. She also says that when Feebles was sent to Rockland State she was unaware that it was a mental institution. She thought it was a hospital which would cure him from whatever his problems were, but she said he was put in with homosexuals at around the age of 11 and they destroyed him completely.

More....

Page 3

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio
Date: 11/14/73
To: Lewis M. Steel
Re: People v. Maynard

Checking my notes I see that Mrs. Nash told me that he worked at another job, at Pleating and Stitching Company, 320 West 37th Street, but I did not see the amount on the W-2 form.

Mrs. Nash's husband, whom I have indicated was present at the interview, told me that Feebles had expressed to him that he was terrified of being recommitted to a mental institution. Mr. Nash works as a bank guard. The stepfather also told me that Feebles is very undependable and does not want to work. Both Mr. and Mrs. Nash gave me a description of Feebles as being very fat, weighing 245-250 lbs., with a long beard. It was not indicated when they had last seen him.

/cpm

MAYNARD

Ralph Ably

notes

11/13/73

M Fee
180 W 94 St.
Pleating & Hitching Co
520 W. 37 St.

Rock State 6/20/55
1955 - dis - 7/9/56
Father Corp
ALFRED Stanley Direct
Dre Aueust-

interview
w. tn
Mrs NASH

1960
Backford 134.40
45-31 Court Square

1957
13 St. after care
China 5th one

PL
Feebles

Bonded Contractors Inc.
210 W 70 97.62

SL Lakes Hoop
7 yrs del Head injury
school 1044 amstraban
109

Bellman 53
7 weeks Elect Shock

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio

Date: 11/14/73

To: Lewis M. Steel

Re: People v. Maynard

My name is Ralph Addonizio. This is a memo to you regarding the assignment you gave me Monday, November 12, 1973 to contact and interview Mrs. Colan Nash, Michael Feebles' mother.

I contacted Mrs. Feebles yesterday, November 13, 1973 at approximately 6:00 PM at her house in Union City, New Jersey. Her address is 4410 New York Avenue, apartment 34.

I met Mrs. Nash in the company of her husband, who was also present at this interview. I identified myself and told her that I was a social worker from the East Village trying to get her son, Michael Feebles, a disability pension through Social Security, or any type of pension we could get him. And that I wanted a medical background of his instability. She told me that she had been called by a Lt. of the New York City Police Department that she had been in contact with for several years, and he cautioned her not to talk to anyone about her son, or about the case that her son was a witness in. At this time I assured her that if the Lt. told her not to talk about it, it was confidential and I didn't want to know about it. All I was interested in was getting a medical background for his supposed pension. With this she started giving me all sorts of information on Michael Feebles. She told me that when he had first started school - she didn't remember the exact year - but he was about 7 or 8 years old, that he was playing in a playground on Riverside Drive, and he slid down a slide head first and cut his head. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital by her mother, who was watching the boy at the time, and from that time on he was very unstable and could not learn. He is illiterate, and does not know how to read or write. St. Luke's Hospital has a large medical record on the man from over a period of years.

In 1953, he was committed to Bellevue Hospital for 7 weeks, where he received electric shock treatment. In 1955, he was committed to Rockland State Hospital, and he was kept there over a year. The discharge date was July 9, 1956. The diagnosis at that time was that he was incurable, there was nothing they could do to

More....

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio
Date: 11/14/73
To: Lewis M. Steel
Re: People v. Maynard

help him. He would get no worse, but he would get no better. After he came out of Rockland State Hospital, he had some aftercare treatment at a clinic on 13th Street, off Fifth Avenue, in Manhattan. She said that this did not work out, and she sent him to the Dominican Republic for a couple of years to live with her sister.

She also gave me some W-2 forms - or showed me some W-2 forms - of jobs that he had had. He had worked in 1960 for Bickford's Restaurant Company, ^(records) at 45-31 Court Square, the personnel offices.) Another job that he had was Bonded Contractors, Incorporated, at 210 West 70th Street.

The W-2 form with regard to Bickford's was dated 1960, and indicated that he received $134.40 which would indicate that he was employed there a very short time. The W-2 form from Bonded Contractors, Inc. of 210 West 70th Street, indicated that he was paid only $97.62.

At the time of Feebles' initial injury, Feebles was 7 or 8 years old. At that time his address was 180 West 94th Street.

With regard to Feebles' stay at Rockland State, Mrs. Nash was aware that a Dr. August had something to do with her son's case. While at Bellevue, Feebles received electric shock treatments, but Mrs. Nash could not supply any further information about that hospitalization.

Mrs. Nash states that Feebles attended public school, first at 104th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, and when she had problems with him there he was transferred to a school at 109th Street. She says that when the school system continued to have problems with him, he was then sent to Bellevue Hospital. She also says that when Feebles was sent to Rockland State she was unaware that it was a mental institution. She thought it was a hospital which would cure him from whatever his problems were, but she said he was put in with homosexuals at around the age of 11 and they destroyed him completely.

More....

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio

Date: 11/14/73

To: Lewis M. Steel

Re: People v. Maynard

Checking my notes I see that Mrs. Nash told me that he worked at another job, at Pleating and Stitching Company, 320 West 37th Street, but I did not see the amount on the W-2 form.

Mrs. Nash's husband, whom I have indicated was present at the interview, told me that Feebles had expressed to him that he was terrified of being recommitted to a mental institution. Mr. Nash works as a bank guard. The stepfather also told me that Feebles is very undependable and does not want to work. Both Mr. and Mrs. Nash gave me a description of Feebles as being very fat, weighing 245-250 lbs., with a long beard. It was not indicated when they had last seen him.

/cpm

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio

Date: 11/14/73

To: Lewis M. Steel

Re: People v. Maynard

My name is Ralph Addonizio. This is a memo to you regarding the assignment you gave me Monday, November 12, 1973 to contact and interview Mrs. Colan Nash, Michael Feebles' mother.

I contacted Mrs. Feebles yesterday, November 13, 1973 at approximately 6:00 PM at her house in Union City, New Jersey. Her address is 4410 New York Avenue, apartment 34.

I met Mrs. Nash in the company of her husband, who was also present at this interview. I identified myself and told her that I was a social worker from the East Village trying to get her son, Michael Feebles, a disability pension through Social Security, or any type of pension we could get him. And that I wanted a medical background of his instability. She told me that she had been called by a Lt. of the New York City Police Department that she had been in contact with for several years, and he cautioned her not to talk to anyone about her son, or about the case that her son was a witness in. At this time I assured her that if the Lt. told her not to talk about it, it was confidential and I didn't want to know about it. All I was interested in was getting a medical background for his supposed pension. With this she started giving me all sorts of information on Michael Feebles. She told me that when he had first started school - she didn't remember the exact year - but he was about 7 or 8 years old, that he was playing in a playground on Riverside Drive, and he slid down a slide head first and cut his head. He was taken to St. Luke's Hospital by her mother, who was watching the boy at the time, and from that time on he was very unstable and could not learn. He is illiterate, and does not know how to read or write. St. Luke's Hospital has a large medical record on the man from over a period of years.

In 1953, he was committed to Bellevue Hospital for 7 weeks, where he received electric shock treatment. In 1955, he was committed to Rockland State Hospital, and he was kept there over a year. The discharge date was July 9, 1956. The diagnosis at that time was that he was incurable, there was nothing they could do to

More....

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio
Date: 11/14/73
To: Lewis M. Steel
Re: People v. Maynard

help him. He would get no worse, but he would get no better. After he came out of Rockland State Hospital, he had some aftercare treatment at a clinic on 13th Street, off Fifth Avenue, in Manhattan. She said that this did not work out, and she sent him to the Dominican Republic for a couple of years to live with her sister.

She also gave me some W-2 forms - or showed me some W-2 forms - of jobs that he had had. He had worked in 1960 for Bickford's Restaurant Company, (at 45-31 Court Square, the personnel offices) ^(records) Another job that he had was Bonded Contractors, Incorporated, at 210 West 70th Street.

The W-2 form with regard to Bickford's was dated 1960, and indicated that he received $134.40 which would indicate that he was employed there a very short time. The W-2 form from Bonded Contractors, Inc. of 210 West 70th Street, indicated that he was paid only $97.62.

At the time of Feebles' initial injury, Feebles was 7 or 8 years old. At that time his address was 180 West 94th Street.

With regard to Feebles' stay at Rockland State, Mrs. Nash was aware that a Dr. August had something to do with her son's case. While at Bellevue, Feebles received electric shock treatments, but Mrs. Nash could not supply any further information about that hospitalization.

Mrs. Nash states that Feebles attended public school, first at 104th Street and Amsterdam Avenue, and when she had problems with him there he was transferred to a school at 109th Street. She says that when the school system continued to have problems with him, he was then sent to Bellevue Hospital. She also says that when Feebles was sent to Rockland State she was unaware that it was a mental institution. She thought it was a hospital which would cure him from whatever his problems were, but she said he was put in with homosexuals at around the age of 11 and they destroyed him completely.

More....

Taping by: Ralph Addonizio
Date: 11/14/73
To: Lewis M. Steel
Re: People v. Maynard

Checking my notes I see that Mrs. Nash told me that he worked at another job, at Pleating and Stitching Company, 320 West 37th Street, but I did not see the amount on the W-2 form.

Mrs. Nash's husband, whom I have indicated was present at the interview, told me that Feebles had expressed to him that he was terrified of being recommitted to a mental institution. Mr. Nash works as a bank guard. The stepfather also told me that Feebles is very undependable and does not want to work. Both Mr. and Mrs. Nash gave me a description of Feebles as being very fat, weighing 245-250 lbs., with a long beard. It was not indicated when they had last seen him.

/cpm