PUBLIC INTEREST RECEPTION SET

The New York Law School Public Interest Coalition (PIC) will hold a reception Thurs., Sept. 28, 6-8 pm, Wellington Conference Center.

Lisa Schatz '97, National Association for Public Interest Law (NAPIL) 2000 Equal Justice Fellow and NYLS Summer 2000 Public Interest fellows will be honored.

This event is free but donations of any amount are welcome. Make checks payable to the New York Law School Public Interest Coalition and submit them to Student Life.

RSVP by 9/14 to Shani Friedman 431-2899 x4320 or friedman.s@nyls.edu.

The Public Interest Coalition strives to encourage the pursuit of legal careers in the public interest by providing members with resume workshops, current job and networking opportunities, building coalitions with other public interest organizations and agencies, and hosting information panels and other school events. It works to generate widespread concern among legal professionals for public interest issues such as capital punishment, AIDS, and political asylum.

The 2000-2001 ABA Law Student Division Competition information available

The 2000-2001 ABA Law Student Division Competition information is now available on the Web. Details on the Competitions on Client Counseling, National Appellate Advocacy and Negotiation have been released at <http://www.abanet.org/lsd/competition.html>.

The competitions offer a forum for students to develop skills used by practitioners. The program provides a resume-building experience and offers an opportunity to network with fellow law students from around the nation.

Announcement and entry forms for each competition can also be accessed on the ABA/LSD competitions Web page. Participants must be members of the American Bar Association/Law Student Division. Law students at ABA-accredited law schools may join the ABA/LSD via the on-line application at <http://www.abanet.org/members/join/lstdappn.html> or by calling 1-800-285-2221.

Additional information will be posted to the LSD's competitions Web pages as it becomes available.

The ABA also has posted information about four student writing competitions sponsored by the ABA sections of anti-trust, family, criminal and business law. Cash prizes may be awarded. Visit <http://www.abanet.org/lsd/competition.html>.

FACULTY ACTIVITIES

PROFESSOR ROBERT BLECKER appeared on CBS "Weekend News," "Court TV's "Crier Today" and "Ricki Kleiman" shows to discuss the death penalty after he was a witness at the execution of Benny Demps in Florida. He subsequently wrote an essay on the death penalty focusing on Danny Rollings, a co-inmate of Demps. In March he was featured in two profiles focusing on his death penalty position: The New York Times on March 20 and in the Philadelphia Daily News on March 29.

Prof. Blecker has a book contract with Basic Books for what will be the first book advocating the death penalty in over 30 years and only the third in the last 100 years.

PROFESSOR MICHAEL BOTEIN delivered a paper on "Regulatory Trends on the Mass Media" to senior Japanese government executives and business people in August. The lecture was sponsored by Nippon Television, Japan's largest broadcast network.

PROFESSOR KAREN GROSS was interviewed for Minnesota Public Radio on the future of bankruptcy reform in the US. She also was interviewed for "Bankruptcy Court Decisions" newsletter, on the convergence of bankruptcy and privacy issues, which has become a hot topic lately.

While on sabbatical in Vermont last spring, Prof. Gross taught a three-part workshop entitled "Making Sense of Cents." The workshop, offered to assist parents on public assistance, was a special project of the Getting Ready To Work Initiative, a collaboration of the Vermont Adult Learning Reach Up Department of Employment & Training, and Department of Social Welfare.

PROFESSOR SETH HARRIS was quoted in the Houston Chronicle, August 11 on the ramifications of the United Auto Workers' formal endorsement of Democratic presidential candidate Al Gore.

PROFESSOR WILLIAM LAPIANA was reporter for the Uniform Disclaimer of Property Interests Acts (1999) a project of the National Commissioners on Uniform State Laws. The project has been enacted into law in Hawaii, the bill having been signed by the Governor on April 20. This is the first enactment of the UDPIA into law.

PROFESSOR ARTHUR LEONARD published an essay entitled "From Bowers v. Hardwick to Romer v. Evans: Lesbian and Gay Rights in the U.S. Supreme Court" as a chapter in an anthology titled Creating Change: Sexuality, Public Policy, and Civil Rights. (John D'Emilio, William B. Turner and Urvashi Vaid, Eds. St. Martin's Press, 2000). The anthology was organized under the auspices of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force Policy Institute.

PROFESSOR DENISE MORGAN's third edition of Breaking into the Academy: The 2000-2002 Michigan Journal of Race and Law Guide for Aspiring Law Professors was recently released. Co-authored with Jack Chin, a visiting professor at NYU, the guide is designed to help law students and practicing lawyers who are interested in moving into law teaching. It includes advice on negotiating the application process, addresses, phone numbers & Web sites of helpful organizations and citations to articles about the demographics of the law teaching profession. The guide also contains up-to-date listings of law teaching fellowship programs, graduate law degree programs and legal methods teaching programs and advice on how to write and publish a law review article.

PROFESSOR RUDOLPH PERITZ just finished writing an afterward to the revised paperback edition of Competition Policy in America: History, Rhetoric, Law (Oxford University Press 1996). The revised paperback edition will appear in late fall. Prof. Peritz is spending this fall at the University of Essex in the UK as a visiting professor teaching a graduate course on US Competition Policy. He also will give a public lecture to the University regarding the Microsoft antitrust litigation.

PROFESSOR MICHAEL PERLIN traveled to Budapest, Hungary, under the auspices of Mental Disability Rights International, and trained patient advocates, hospital ombudspersons, former patients, and patients' rights lawyers in mental disability law. He also spoke to various Ministry of Justice officials about pending mental health reform litigation and met with Hungarian Civil Liberties Union staff members about the potential uses of law reform/test case litigation in the Hungarian system.

Prof. Perlin presented two papers—"The Law of Healing" and "Outpatient Commitment: Historical Perspectives, Political Slogans, and Civil libertarian Dilemmas"—at the International Congress on Law and Mental Health in Siena, Italy. He was a member of the International Scientific Committee, which organized the conference.

FACULTY ACTIVITIES

Prof. Perlin published "A Law of Healing," 68 U. Cin. L. Rev. 407 (2000). This article was an expanded version of a lecture he gave last year at the University of Cincinnati College of Law. He also finished the manuscript of the third volume of what will be a four-volume second edition of his treatise, Mental Disability Law: Civil and Criminal.

Prof. Perlin had three new law review articles accepted for publication: "Their Promises of Paradise: Will Olmstead v. L.C. Resuscitate the "Least Restrictive Alternative" Principle in Mental Disability Law? which will be published in a Health law symposium in the Houston Law Review; "Johnny's in the Basement/Mixing Up His Medicine": Therapeutic Jurisprudence and Clinical Teaching (co-authored w/ Professor Keri Gould), which will be published in a mental disability law symposium in the Seattle Law Review; and "Stepping Outside (the Box): Viewing Your Clients in a Whole New Light," which will be published in a creative problem solving symposium in the California Western Law Review. Prof. Perlin also prepared "The Right to Refuse Treatment in the Forensic Process" for the second edition of the Encyclopedia of Forensic Psychiatry.

Prof. Perlin was visited by an Australian delegation from the New South Wales Legislative Assembly: Members of Parliament Daryl Maguire and Milton Orkopoulos, and committee staff counsel Katherine Watson. The group spoke for four hours about adult guardianship laws outpatient commitment legislation, advocacy services for persons with mental disabilities, and the role of the judiciary in institutional law reform.

PROFESSOR SADIQ REZA reviewed "Absolutely 100% Guilty: The Professional Edition," Vincent Bugliosi's video series on the O.J. Simpson trial. His review appeared in the New York Law Journal on Sept. 12.

PROFESSOR RICHARD SHERWIN's book, When Law Goes Pop: The Vanishing Line between Law and Popular Culture (The University of Chicago Press, 2000), has received reviews from Publishers Weekly, Library Journal, Brill's Content, The Chronicle of Higher Education, The Times Literary Supplement, Amazon.com, Journal of Criminal Justice and Popular Culture, WNYC's "On the Line," and writ.findlaw.com.

His letter in the Sept. 7 The New York Times rebuts Court

TV's CEO Henry Schleiff's defense in an Sept. 6 op-ed piece of the "Real Confessions" show.

ADJUNCT PROFESSOR PETER J. STRAUSS wrote two recent articles for the New York Law Journal. "Using Powers of Attorney as Planning Tools" (co-written by Russell N. Alder) appeared in the July 17 Elder Law section. Prof. Strauss' op-ed piece, "The Health Care Proxy: Does the Client Have Capacity to Sign It?," ran on July 18.

PROFESSOR NADINE STROSSEN was interviewed about various constitutional law and civil liberties issues on many TV shows, including: ABC's "Politically Incorrect," PBS's "News Hour with Jim Lehrer," "The American Experience," "One on One with John McLaughlin," "Debates, Debates," "This is America," CNN's "Crossfire," "Talkback Live," MSNBC's "Brian Williams Show," "Fox News," "Hannity & Colmes," "Lifetime Live" a Showtime docu-drama; Oxygen Media's "Ether" hosted by Candace Bergen; and a documentary on Great Britain's Channel 4.

Professor Strossen delivered keynote addresses at many events and conferences, including: the Massachusetts School of Law Commencement where she was awarded an honorary doctorate of laws degree; the American Bar Association Annual Meeting, NYC; the Institute of Ideas, London; the Annual Convention of the American Association of University Professors and The Newspaper Guild, Washington, DC; and the Anglo-American Human Rights Conference, London.

She also delivered lectures at many universities across the US and abroad, including: Oxford, Harvard, Columbia, Northwestern, George Mason, the University of Massachusetts, the University of London, and Randolph-Macon.

On September 3, Prof. Strossen debated former Education Secretary William Bennett on Fox TV's Sunday Morning program, hosted by Tony Snow, about recent controversies concerning the intersection between religion and politics.

PROFESSOR RUTI TEITEL was an "Anglo-American Dialogue" panelist at New York School of Law in September.
