

January 1996

CONTRIBUTORS

Follow this and additional works at: https://digitalcommons.nyls.edu/nyls_law_review

Recommended Citation

CONTRIBUTORS, 40 N.Y.L. SCH. L. REV. (1996).

This Article is brought to you for free and open access by DigitalCommons@NYLS. It has been accepted for inclusion in NYLS Law Review by an authorized editor of DigitalCommons@NYLS.

CONTRIBUTORS

LYLE DENNISTON is the Supreme Court reporter for The Baltimore Sun, and is the dean of the Court's press corps. He is the author of The Reporter and the Law: Techniques of Covering the Courts (Columbia University Press, 1992). He is contributing editor and regular columnist for American Lawyer magazine, and is on the adjunct faculties of both Georgetown University Law Center and the Washington College of Law at American University.

KIM I. EISLER is from Lynchburg, Va., where his father ran a factory that made women's slacks. Bert Eisler was the only known garment industry executive who tried to unionize his own plant. Eisler eventually attended George Washington University in Washington, D.C., from which he holds a Bachelor of Arts in Political Science. While a student, Eisler was an editorial assistant and stringer for Time Magazine. In 1975, Eisler became a staff writer for the Delta Democratic Times in Greenville, Miss. From 1978-1983, he served as government reporter and state capital bureau chief of The Tampa Tribune. In 1983, Eisler became staff writer for the Los Angeles Daily Journal, where his exposure of problems at San Francisco's Morrison & Foerster brought him to the attention of publishing and cable magnate Steven Brill. Brill brought Eisler to New York as a writer for American Lawyer and when Brill purchased Legal Times in 1987, Eisler was part of the group sent to Washington to put Brill's imprimatur on it. In 1989, Eisler wrote Shark Tank, (St. Martin's Press), the inside story of how New York law firm Finley Kumble collapsed. Four years later he wrote A Justice For All, (Simon & Schuster), the first biography of Justice William Brennan, Jr. Since 1991, Eisler has been National Editor of Washingtonian Magazine, with principal responsibility for the magazine's legal, lobbying and zoo coverage, a combination that upon reflection makes sense.

DAVID J. GARROW is Distinguished Historian in Residence at American University and is the author of Liberty and Sexuality: The Right to Privacy and the Making of Roe v. Wade (Macmillan, 1994), a comprehensive history of the American reproductive rights struggle. His previous book, Bearing the Cross: Martin Luther King, Jr., and the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (Morrow, 1986), won the 1987 Pulitzer Prize in Biography, the seventh annual Robert F. Kennedy Book Award, and two other book prizes. Garrow is also the author of The FBI and Martin Luther King, Jr. (Norton, 1981) and Protest at Selma (Yale, 1978), as well as editor of The Montgomery Bus Boycott and the Women Who Started It: The Memoir of Jo Ann Gibson Robinson (Tennessee, 1987) and co-editor of The Eyes on the Prize Civil Rights Reader (Viking Penguin, 1987, 1991). He served as a senior advisor for "Eyes on the Prize," the award-winning PBS television history of the American Black freedom struggle, and his articles have appeared in such scholarly journals